Metro-North Ridership Jumps As Hudson Valley Reopens In Phase 2

In the middle of the pandemic, ridership was at 4 percent of normal.

Ridership post-pandemic continues to trend upward as the Hudson Valley region began reopening. (Michael Woyton / Patch)

HUDSON VALLEY, NY — Ridership on Metro-North Railroad increased to 20,140 riders on June 8, equaling 10 percent of Metro-North's pre-pandemic ridership. That's up from 4 percent mid-pandemic.

Ridership continues to trend upward as the Hudson Valley region began Phase 2 on Tuesday and Long Island's Phase 2 started Wednesday, Metropolitan Transit Authority officials said.

Floor decals have been placed near ticket windows and information booths to encourage proper social distancing on lines. Similar decals can also be found on the platforms at the Fordham, Pelham, Scarsdale and Tarrytown stations so riders can properly social distance while waiting for their train.

Subscribe >

Beginning Monday, Metro-North will return to about 61 percent of the normal weekday service with a new schedule supporting supplement peak inbound and reverse peak service, while still maintaining hourly service during off-peak hours.

The schedule will bring Metro-North to 50 trains arriving at Grand Central Terminal during the AM peak and 68 trains departing during the PM peak. This marks a 115 percent capacity increase from the current schedule, which sees 24 trains in the morning peak and 24 in the evening peak. Off-peak fares will continue to apply at all times. Additional trains and crews will be available in all yard locations to add trains into service should the demand warrant.

"As the number of riders traveling from Metro-North's service region to New York City continues to grow, the safety of our customers and employees is our number one priority," said Metro-North Railroad President Catherine Rinaldi. "We continue unprecedented, 24/7 cleaning regimen as well as providing masks and hand sanit. stations for our riders."

Metro-North personnel distributed 250 masks and 200 hand sanitizer packets Monday, and touchless hand sanitizer dispensers are being installed at all Metro-North stations.

Daily disinfecting and cleaning will continue with all Metro-North train cars being sanitized at least once a day and stations at least twice daily. To date, Metro-North stations have been cleaned more than 9,500 times, train cars have been cleaned more than 17,000 times.

"Those trains are cleaner than they've ever been in my lifetime," Gov. Andrew Cuomo said in his Wednesday briefing.

Face covering signage has been posted at all stations to remind riders they need one to travel.

MTA Metro-North Railroad President Catherine Rinaldi will appear on Facebook Live with Westchester County Executive George Latimer to discuss the reopening of the Mid-Hudson Valley region and Metro-North's Essential Service Plan enhancements.

Mets vs. Yankees Clash Postponed After Coronavirus Diagnoses

NEW YORK CITY — The New York Mets received two positive tests for COVID-19 in their organization Thursday, Major League Baseball said, prompting the postponement of two games.

The finale of the Mets' four-game series at Miami was called off an hour before it was scheduled to start Thursday night. Friday's game between the Mets and New York Yankees at Citi Field was also postponed to allow for additional testing and contact tracing to be conducted, MLB said.

The Marlins were still scheduled to travel to Washington for a series against the Nationals beginning Friday. The Marlins had a coronavirus outbreak last month that forced them to suspend their season for eight days.

Midtown Pols, Advocates Rally For 5th Avenue Busway

Transportation advocates demanded Thursday that the mayor reverse plans to scale back a planned busway along Fifth Avenue.

MIDTOWN MANHATTAN, NY — A cohort of transportation advocates and elected officials braved a Thursday morning drizzle to call on Mayor Bill de Blasio to follow through with plans to construct a busway along Fifth Avenue, following news last month that the project would be scaled back.

For years, advocates have asked the city to construct a car-free busway along traffic-clogged Fifth Avenue, akin to the one installed on 14th Street last fall.

But the city's latest plans, presented by a Department of Transportation representative at a community board meeting last month, scrapped the busway in favor of a travel lane that would be shared with private vehicles. Retailers along the corridor had complained about "signage clutter" that would have accompanied the redesigned avenue, the DOT said.

Critics say the city should not have surrendered to the retailers' demands, arguing that a serious redesign remains necessary to speed up commutes along the typically-packed avenue.

"New Yorkers deserve world-class transit," Marco Conner DiAquoi, deputy director of the advocacy group Transportation Alternatives, said at Thursday's rally on the steps of the Stephen A. Schwarzman library at Bryant Park. "Only a true, full-fledged busway on Fifth Avenue is acceptable."

As if to underline the rally's message, two NYPD vehicles pulled up to monitor the event — and parked squarely in the middle of the bus lane for its duration.

Other elected officials backing the original busway plan included City Councilmember Keith Powers, Assemblymember Dick Gottfried, and State Sen. Brad Hoylman, who cited the "overwhelming success" of the 14th Street busway.

Speakers were flanked by sign-holding transportation advocates, bearing messages critical of the influence of upscale retail on the city's plans: "Rolex, Tiffany's, Armani? Fuhgedaboudit! Put people first now!"

MTA Alerts Vendors: Your Contracts In Jeopardy Without Fed Aid

The transit agency fired off letters warning 11 major contractors that it needs $12 billion in federal aid or else be unable to pay.

NEW YORK CITY — MTA's contracts with its major suppliers are in "jeopardy" without $12 billion in federal aid, the transit agency warned.

Eleven national suppliers received dire letters this week from MTA Chairman Patrick Foye, who wrote the coronavirus pandemic has devastated his agency.

MTA is losing $200 million revenue losses every week, a crisis that even eclipses the impact the Great Depression had on the city's transit system, Foye wrote.

Subscribe >

"I am writing to alert you that because of this financial devastation, many current and all future contracts are in jeopardy without an injection of $12 billion in emergency federal aid," Foye wrote the supplies. "In response to the COVID crisis, the MTA has implemented immediate and aggressive cost controls, including undertaking a thorough review of all new and planned expenditures."

The suppliers — which include Alstom Transportation, Bombardier Transportation and Siemens Corporation — are located in 25 states from Florida to Kentucky to California.

The letters are the latest warning sounded by MTA officials as they face a $16 billion projected deficit amid the pandemic. They've previously warned of "draconian" service cuts of up to 40 percent without federal stimulus.
